How we began

Formation of the Councils and legislation

Following the economic challenges of the 1980s and 1990s, professional indemnity insurers were retreating from the market and consumers were at risk of receiving services from insured providers at higher and higher costs, or uninsured providers with no protection for consumers at all.

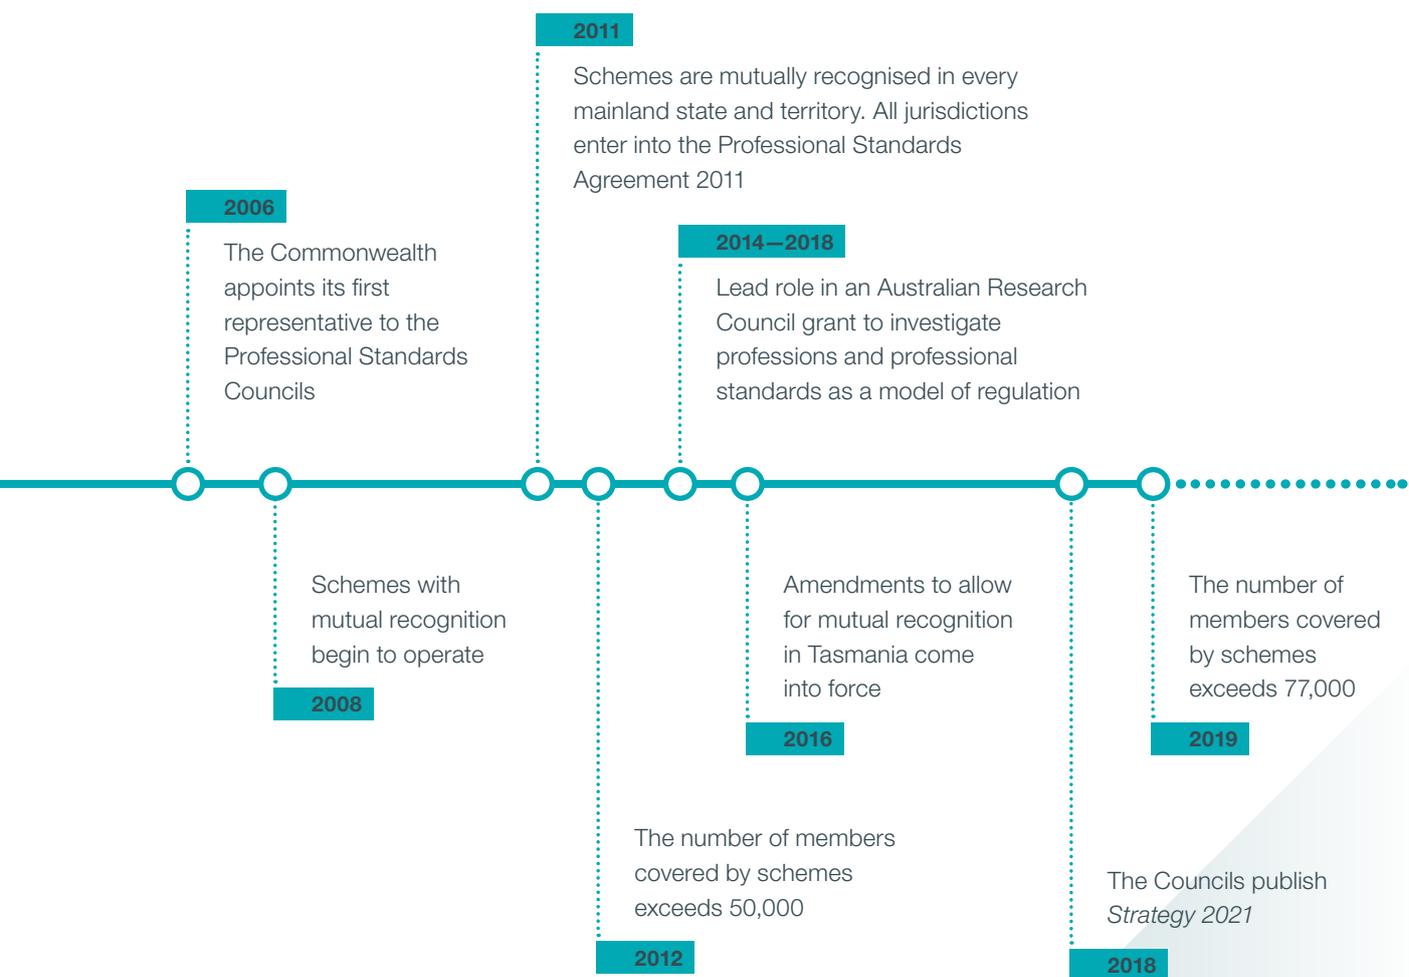

Governments recognised a need for an efficient and cost effective system to raise the occupational standards of professionals and others, and to provide for some guarantee of payment for consumers if a claim was made. To promote self-regulation by occupational associations, Professional Standards Councils were established to assist and encourage the associations, and to approve and supervise the operation of professional standards schemes.

Following the passage of the Professional Standards Act 1994 (NSW), the Professional Standards Council of New South Wales was formed, with Western Australia following in 1997.

Professional standards schemes are legal instruments that limit the civil liability of association members and commit occupational associations to continuously improve the professional standards of their members to protect the consumers of their services.

The reach of professional standards legislation was extended following the collapse in 2001 of insurance giant, HIH Insurance Limited, resulting in widespread unavailability and unaffordability of professional indemnity insurance. This significant event, which affected people across Australia, highlighted the importance of maintaining liability practices to protect consumers. Professional standards legislation was passed and Councils were established in each remaining Australian state and territory.

Subsequently, the Commonwealth Government passed legislation that permitted the civil liability of occupational association members to be limited under the Trade Practices Act 1974 (now the Competition and Consumer Act 2010), the Corporations Act 2001, and the Australian Securities and Investments Commission Act 2001.

Our vision, mission and mandate

Our vision

Professional and occupational associations lead the way in advancing the highest standards of professional services to Australian consumers.

Our mission

To regulate occupational associations to facilitate and promote consumer protection through improvement in professional standards under professional standards schemes.

Our mandate

To lead the national system of professional standards regulation by enabling the creation of professional standards schemes, and by assisting and supervising their operation, balancing the interests of consumers of professional services and of self-regulating professions and occupations.

Protect consumers

Our goal is to protect consumers of professional services by demanding high levels of professional standards from those who participate in professional standards schemes. Regulated occupational associations and their members have committed to ensuring competent and ethical conduct in providing services and ensuring avenues of resolution and redress are available to consumers.

Help associations

Our objective is to approve and supervise professional standards schemes and assist occupational associations in the development of self-regulation of professional standards.

Schemes allow limits to be placed on the civil liability of professionals who are members of an association and ensure there will be compensation available to consumers up to that limit.

Improve professional standards

Our goal is to improve professional standards, including encouraging and assisting occupational associations to develop self-regulatory capacity and to implement risk management strategies and professional integrity systems.

It also involves promoting professional standards and practices through research, developing policies and regulatory guidance, and delivering forums to promote discussion and change in the areas of professional standards, codes of ethics and practice, and risk management.

Chair's report

I am delighted to present this Annual Report on behalf of the Professional Standards Councils, outlining our work and achievements in 2018–19 and the outlook for 2019–20.

Looking back over the past year, there is much that has been accomplished through the collective efforts of the Councils, the Professional Standards Authority, the participating jurisdictional Departments and the regulated associations. Australian consumers and professions continue to benefit from the operation of professional standards schemes.

The reporting period began with Councils publishing Strategy 2021, our statement of intent for ensuring the national system of professional standards regulation is contemporary, robust and focused on consumer protection.

In meeting our strategic mandate, a particular highlight was the successful launch of a twice-yearly Professional Standards Forum to assist and encourage occupational associations in developing their self-regulatory capacity and to get the best out of operating their professional standards schemes. The first Forum was held in Sydney with the theme 'Complaints as a Risk Management Tool', and was attended by over 50 delegates. The cross-profession discussions emphasised a commonality in the conduct and competence issues underlying complaints, and the need for enhancements in the way associations analyse and use complaints data for the continuous improvement of professional standards. An important feature of the Forum was that associations were introduced to a root cause analysis methodology together with tools that could be taken away and implemented. Councils look forward to associations' results in the next cycle of association reporting on their professional standards improvement programs.

Another highlight was the launch of a Research Library on Modern Professionalism. The Research Library is the culmination of a three year collaborative project between the Councils and research partners, with funding from the Australian Research Council Linkage Project scheme, to promote and advance research on professional obligation and regulation in the 21st century. Our thanks go to Professor Dimity Kingsford Smith at the UNSW Centre for Law, Markets and Regulation for leading the research project and to Councils' lead investigator, Dr Deen Sanders OAM. The Research Library provides a rich resource on practical mechanisms to help occupational associations improve standards of conduct of their members and provide higher levels of consumer protection.

In meeting the Councils' statutory mandate, a major focus for the year has been on the financial services and built environment sectors. Recent inquiries have highlighted the impact on consumers, and the loss of trust, that result where standards and conduct get out of step with community expectations in the delivery of professional and other services.

The Councils made submissions to the Royal Commission into Misconduct in Banking, Financial Services and Superannuation and engaged with regulators on the contribution that well supervised self-regulation can play in complementing formal regulation to proactively drive improvements in behaviour and ethical norms.

The Councils provided advice to the Building Ministers Forum on how professional standards schemes can help to raise and assure the quality of services and professional conduct with associated benefits that can reduce risk and liability and influence the availability and quality of professional indemnity insurance. The Building Ministers Forum has since communicated that it will consider a pathway for professional standards schemes in building and construction.

In both sectors, and in light of these developments, the Councils have actively encouraged and assisted occupational associations to consider applying for professional standards schemes. Such schemes are a powerful way in which professionals and others can effectively respond to the demands for industry to take a share of the responsibility to lift professional standards and to put consumer protection and serving their community at the centre of all that they do.

Advancements in professional standards schemes were made in the year, with Councils approving new provisions in three schemes. In each case, the Councils considered the detailed risk management strategies of the associations and the risk environment for the professional and other services provided by their members, balancing the consumer protection benefits. The Councils approved new schemes for Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand and CPA Australia in which accountants providing financial services are no longer excluded from coverage. The Councils approved an amendment to the scheme for Australia Property Institute Valuers Ltd to create a new monetary ceiling based on a type of lower risk work. These advancements are indicative of the responsive regulatory environment the Councils seek to foster to maximise the benefits of supervised self-regulation. They also reflect the increasing emphasis in Councils' regulatory decision-making on careful examination of risk and data in weighing the public interests in scheme approvals.

During the year I was pleased to accept re-appointment as a member of Councils and as Chair for a term ending on 31 December 2021, as well as to welcome Mr Andrew Lumsden's re-appointment as the Deputy Chair for a term ending on 31 March 2021 and Ms Rachel Webber's re-appointment as a member for a term ending on 31 December 2021.

The Councils congratulated our former Chair, Mr Brian Rayment QC, for his recognition in the 2019 Australia Day honours list. Mr Rayment received a Medal of the Order of Australia (OAM) in the General Division for his service to the law. Amongst his many contributions, Mr Rayment was Chair of the Councils from 2005 to 2017. Councils were delighted to see his dedicated leadership rewarded in such a distinguished manner.

Looking ahead, the Councils have an agenda that will be focused on engaging with all our stakeholders to ensure the professional standards regulatory system is well understood and supported to deliver consumer protections through a broader range of occupational associations and driving continuous improvement in professional standards. Our agenda will also be focused on delivering a refresh of the professional standards scheme application framework. Our aim will be to ensure the application framework is easy to deal with for occupational associations seeking to step up their professional standards self-regulatory systems. Our aim will also be to ensure the application framework is robust in enabling the creation of professional standards schemes by Councils, as we seek to balance the interests of consumers of professional and other services and those of self-regulating professions and occupations.

I thank members of Councils for their leadership and dedication throughout the year in delivering on our mission. I have appreciated their collegiality and expertise in all our endeavours to achieve the objectives established for us by State and Territory Parliaments and to protecting consumers across Australia through the improvement of professional standards by occupational associations.

Professional Standards Councils Strategy 2021

Strategy 2021 was approved by Councils in June 2018 and sets out the five strategic goals to be achieved over three years. To meet these goals, a number of initiatives are identified to advance the Councils' mission in improving professional standards and ensuring Australian consumers are protected.

The goals and initiatives that form Strategy 2021 are:

Strategic goals	Strategic initiatives
Make a practical and transparent change to Councils' regulatory focus to enable schemes, including for occupational groups	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▶ Develop and publish the Councils' regulatory philosophy and principles to guide the way Councils regulate.</li> <li>▶ Raise the profile of the system of professional standards regulation as a self-regulatory and consumer protection solution.</li> <li>▶ Promote self-regulatory responses to government policy requirements, changing market conditions and community expectations.</li> </ul>

To achieve the consumer protection mandate, we need to consider a wider range of occupational groups. We will enable the creation of schemes and the development of self-regulatory capacity beyond the traditional professions.

Drive improvements in professional standards for better consumer protection	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▶ Strengthen scheme supervision and reporting, and the accountability of association governing bodies.</li> <li>▶ Identify and report on sectors where consumers would benefit from the operation of professional standards schemes.</li> <li>▶ Promote the benefits of professional standards schemes to occupational associations facing increased risk to consumers of their members' services.</li> </ul>

We have a role to educate the community on professional standards and promote the benefits of professional standards schemes. We will identify sectors and occupational groups facing risk and engage with them and support their development of self-regulation and improvements in standards.

Strategic goals

Strategic initiatives

Build an evidence base to demonstrate effectiveness

- ▶ Modernise data and analytics capability to support supervision and measure improvements in professional standards.
- ▶ Align and leverage relationships with researchers and co-regulators.
- ▶ Identify and report on trends and emerging issues to assist efforts to improve professional standards.

To be the voice of professional standards improvement, we need to make the evidence available. Councils are in the unique position of being able to view data across all professions and to apply and disseminate that knowledge and expertise.

Ensure the regulatory system is robust and protects consumers

- ▶ Refresh and streamline the scheme application and supervision frameworks.
- ▶ Work with jurisdictions to pursue legislative and regulatory harmonisation and reform where beneficial.
- ▶ Develop clear risk parameters for Councils and more structured and evidence-based risk data, measurement systems and benchmarks.

To strengthen the regulatory system and ensure a consistent approach is applied to improving standards, associations and occupational groups need a clear understanding of occupational risk and how to manage them.

Make the regulatory system easy to deal with

- ▶ Deliver clear and practical encouragement and assistance to occupational associations to develop self-regulatory capacity and improvement in the professional standards of their members.
- ▶ Be enabled by and engaged with digital service delivery.
- ▶ Introduce and respond to a stakeholder satisfaction measurement source.

We are streamlining the application process to make it more efficient and to provide clarity on requirements. Occupational associations will have practical help with access to research and analysis and a range of regulatory resources.

The initiatives to be taken under Strategy 2021 will advance the objects of the professional standards legislation which are as follows:

- a) to enable the creation of schemes to limit the civil liability of professionals and others,
- b) to facilitate the improvement of occupational standards of professionals and others,
- c) to protect the consumers of the services provided by professionals and others,
- d) to constitute the Professional Standards Council to supervise the preparation and application of schemes and to assist in the improvement of occupational standards and protection of consumers.

About the Professional Standards Councils

About the Professional Standards Councils

Professional Standards Councils

The Councils are statutory bodies with powers to assess and approve applications from occupational associations for a professional standards scheme under professional standards legislation.

There are eight Professional Standards Councils—one in each Australian state and territory. Each Council has 11 members. All states and territories have agreed to appoint the same 11 members to their Councils. NSW and Victoria nominate two members each, while all other state and territories and the Commonwealth nominate one member.

Professional standards legislation provides a national harmonised framework for supervised regulation to strengthen consumer protection.

Role of the Councils

The Councils administer the professional standards legislation in each state and territory:

- › Enabling the creation of schemes that limit the civil liability of professionals and others
- › Monitoring how well associations and their members meet the standards demanded by their professional standards schemes
- › Encouraging and promoting the regulation of standards
- › Protecting consumers who use the services provided by professionals and others.

Professional standards legislation

Professional standards legislation seeks to strike a balance between:

- › Placing a ceiling on the amount of civil liability to which a member of an association participating in a scheme may be exposed
- › Ensuring sufficient compensation is available to consumers for the vast majority of claims where liability results in an award of damages
- › Requiring associations operating schemes to continuously improve the standards of conduct of its members, so that claims are reduced.

Professional standards schemes

Unique to Australia, professional standards schemes limit the civil liability of association members who have an insurance policy and business assets commensurate with the maximum liability amount. Each association has insurance standards with which its members must comply.

Each scheme has a maximum duration of five years and the relevant Minister may choose to extend a scheme once for up to 12 months on application by the association. Before the scheme expires, the association must submit an application for an entirely new scheme. This facilitates regular consideration and scrutiny of schemes and liability limits by the Councils and the public.

As members of occupational associations may work across multiple states and territories, the professional standards legislation includes mutual recognition mechanisms for approved schemes to operate nationally.

Improving standards and protecting consumers

Occupational associations and their members participating in professional standards regulation are required to improve the standards of members by implementing robust professional integrity systems and risk management strategies.

The legislation requires those who are covered by a professional standards scheme to hold sufficient professional indemnity insurance cover and/or business assets to protect consumers in the event a successful claim is made.

Professional Standards Authority

The Professional Standards Authority provides regulatory and support services for the Councils.

The Authority supervises associations that have a professional standards scheme to assist them to:

- › Increase consumer protection by improving professional standards
- › Achieve their self-regulatory goals
- › Comply with their legislative obligations.

Councils' members

The Councils' members have experience across a diverse range of industries and specialities, including law, health, financial services, accounting, standards development, risk management, compliance, engineering, auditing and regulation. Members are selected for their qualifications, experience and ability to contribute to the Councils' work. The Chair and Deputy Chair are nominated on an alternating basis by New South Wales and Victoria.

Section 2

Review of Operations

CEO's report

It has been another successful year for the Professional Standards Authority, the national regulatory agency of the Councils. As stewards of the national regulatory system, we are committed to supporting Councils in advancing the objects of the professional standards legislation and ensuring our regulatory practices deliver positive outcomes.

We have harnessed the deep experience and expertise of the staff to be responsive in meeting the needs of Councils and stakeholders across the country. As a small regulatory agency, we were able to nimbly and proactively respond to developments during the year.

We worked with 17 regulated occupational associations to supervise the operation of their schemes and to encourage compliance and development of their self-regulatory capacity. Consumer protection was expanded with the number of association members subject to professional standards schemes increasing to over 77,000.

Central to the Authority's role in supporting Councils is our ability to monitor, analyse, assist and advise on the risk management strategies and compliance of each regulated association. It was pleasing to see that our efforts to guide associations with feedback and recommendations through the Professional Standards Improvement Program continue to be accepted, which reflects well on our capacity to drive improvements in the operation of schemes. We have bolstered this capability with the establishment of a specialised supervision team. The supervision team will introduce additional activities to support Councils' monitoring, compliance and enforcement functions with a focus on assisting self-regulatory capacity. Recruitment to the team will be completed in the next reporting period, as will the design of a supervision framework to ensure our methodologies and practices are risk-based and forward-looking.

I am pleased that we have also bolstered our scheme analysis team with the establishment of two positions to enable participation in the NSW Law Society's annual Summer Clerkship Program. The clerkships provided two law students with a unique opportunity to be involved in government regulatory practice over the summer aiding the Authority with legal research capacity. Their work included an update to the summary of cases where courts have considered professional standards legislation and schemes, which has been published on the Councils' website to assist occupational associations with insights into how schemes may apply when pleaded.

As foreshadowed last reporting period, interest has grown in regulatory solutions that can address community expectations for improved accountability and professionalism. Schemes have been recognised as a means of improving standards and securing public confidence. In response, we have worked across government and with occupational associations to assist the examination of professional standards problems and the consideration of supervised self-regulatory solutions. Our experience and the literature demonstrate that including supervised self-regulation in the suite of measures to address conduct risk will strengthen and sustain occupation-wide improvements in professional standards. Fortified by the statutory oversight of Councils, self-regulation of professional standards can not only dramatically expand the depth, coverage, efficiency and capability of the enforcement of professional norms, but can also generate the continuous improvement of professionalism beyond minimum requirements established by direct, formal regulatory measures. We expect to assist a broader range of occupational associations consider schemes and their benefits in the next reporting period, as risks to consumers in a variety of sectors continue to unfold.

Risk management is both a structural feature of the professional standards regulatory framework and a practical feature of the Councils' administration of the framework and the Authority's operations as a regulatory agency. To support a positive and transparent engagement with risk, clear parameters were developed and published by Councils in the form of a Risk Appetite Statement. The statement establishes a common understanding of the links between Councils' risks and the Authority's work and is an important signal to regulated associations and stakeholders on our shared risk culture.

As a multi-jurisdictional regulatory agency, we strive to ensure the administration of the national system is harmonised and efficient. We work closely with policy officers in the responsible departments in each state and territory and the Commonwealth. This reporting period saw the conclusion of the remuneration review and jurisdictional consultation conducted by the then NSW Minister for Innovation and Better Regulation, introducing per annum remuneration for Councils' members in accordance with the Classification and Remuneration Framework for NSW Boards and Committees. The new remuneration arrangements were implemented with effect from July 2018, recognising the high degree of accountability and responsibility for significant statutory obligations of Councils' members and delivering efficiencies in the administration of payments.

Our focus in the next reporting period will include a significant project to refresh and streamline Councils' scheme application framework, an initiative under Strategy 2021. A quality regulatory environment depends on well-designed processes and practices, that are reviewed over time to ensure they continue to meet their specified objectives and adopt improvements or innovations. We anticipate using a co-design approach to involve not only Councils as the regulator but also regulated associations, other regulators and subject matter experts so that we are effective in problem identification and solution creation. Co-design has additional benefits of increasing transparency and trust in our regulatory practices, and the effect of empowering communities of interest and generating enthusiasm for change and innovation. A collaborative and co-operative approach is one that will assist us in the ongoing pursuit of regulatory maturity.

The successes of the Authority are only ever achieved through the efforts of a terrific staff. I acknowledge and thank them for their work across the schemes, supervision and operations teams. I also acknowledge and thank Ms Mary Snell from the NSW Department of Customer Service who stepped into my role at short notice during a period of unplanned leave in 2018. I extend particular thanks to our Executive Officers, Ms Danielle Keogh and Ms Kim Goodluck (Acting), and the Director Professional Standards Regulation, Mr John R Rappell, for their support and dedication to excellence throughout the year.

The regulatory work of the Authority is powerful and provides an opportunity to serve the public interest and contribute to social goods in consumer protection. I feel fortunate to lead staff who embrace that opportunity and I look forward to building on our achievements in the year ahead.

Review of regulatory operations

Overview

This section presents the Councils' regulatory operations and activities in fulfilling their functions specified in the professional standards legislation.

The Councils are also required to report on each regulated occupational association's implementation and monitoring of their detailed risk management strategies.

This year Councils are also reporting on progress with implementing its Strategy 2021. Each of the key measures in Strategy 2021 are discussed in relevant sections below. The data used to assess performance is drawn from a number of sources, and the range and quality of data—as well as the measures themselves—will be continually assessed to ensure they provide useful insights.

Professional standards schemes

As at 30 June 2019, there were 23 schemes in force nationally. The number of association members in these schemes increased over the year from 72,935 to 77,885.

Approving, amending or revoking schemes

The Councils receive and consider applications for schemes made under their respective professional standards legislation. The professional standards legislation in each jurisdiction provides for the Councils to work in conjunction with one another in the exercise of their statutory functions.

Expressions of commitment

The first step in an association seeking a scheme is a written letter of commitment from the association's governing body to the Councils. During 2018–19, one letter of commitment was received. The association's commitment is expected to result in an application for a scheme in the 2019–20 year.

Applications

Once a letter of commitment is received, the Councils may provide advice and assistance to the association in developing its application. A successful application will be founded on demonstrating the association has, or will soon have, in place important elements of self-regulation including:

- › Robust and transparent organisational governance
- › Clear arrangements for the operation of a scheme
- › Defined continuing professional development programs
- › Detailed client-focused risk management strategies
- › Effective, timely and accessible consumer complaints and discipline systems
- › On-going monitoring of members' statutory obligations.

Strategy 2021

Performance Measure

- i. Increasing participation in the professional standards regime: schemes and members. An increase of 6.8% in members of associations covered by schemes over the year to a total of 77,885 members.
- ii. Conversion rate of occupational associations providing a letter of commitment into applications for professional standards schemes.
  - › There was one new letter of commitment received
  - › There was one renewal of a longstanding letter of commitment which resulted in an application
  - › One letter of commitment resulted in an application for a scheme received in a previous reporting period.

Public notification

Before approving a scheme, the Councils must invite comments and submissions from the general public and interested stakeholders about the proposed scheme, by publishing a notice in state and national newspapers. To maximise opportunities for stakeholders' feedback, the Councils also alert potentially interested parties by post, and publish a detailed information document about the scheme, prepared by the applicant association, on the Councils' website.

A successful application will be founded on demonstrating the association has, or will soon have, in place important elements of self-regulation.

Councils' approvals

In considering whether to approve a scheme, Councils consider the application against the objects of the legislation, confirm the association is eligible for a professional standards scheme and consider:

- › Impact of limiting liability
- › Nature and level of occupational liability claims made against members of the association
- › Risk management strategies of the association and how they will be implemented and monitored. These include the association's codes of ethics and practice, quality management system, mediation services, membership requirements and continuing occupational education
- › Cost and availability of professional indemnity insurance
- › Associations' professional indemnity insurance standards
- › The complaints and discipline system
- › The solvency and governance of the association
- › All comments received during the public notification process.

During the year, seven schemes were approved (see Table 2).

Table 2 / Schemes approved 2018–19

Council	Professional standards scheme	Approval	Commencement

QLD	Bar Association of Queensland	7 December 2018	1 July 2019

WA	Law Society of Western Australia	15 February 2019	1 July 2019
VIC	Victorian Bar Association	15 February 2019	1 July 2019

If a Council exercises its discretion to approve a scheme, it is then submitted to the responsible Minister in the relevant jurisdiction, who may authorise notification of the scheme according to the statutory requirements. An approved scheme cannot commence until it has been published or otherwise notified with ministerial authority.

Councils focus on consumer protection and managing risks

Accountants providing financial services with accounting services covered by two new schemes.

Since 2007, professional accountants who also provided financial services under an Australian Financial Services Licence were excluded from the professional accounting schemes operated by the professional accounting bodies including: Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand, CPA Australia, and the Institute of Public Accountants. That meant those professionals and their clients did not have access to the consumer protections of a professional standards scheme for any of the services provided including professional accounting services. The risks to the clients of providing financial services with accounting services were not clearly understood by the associations and there was insufficient comprehensive data for the Councils to assess the risks.

In April 2019, and after considering the detailed risk management strategies of the association, and the risk environment, the Councils approved a new scheme for the Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand which does not exclude accountants providing financial services. The new scheme, proposed by the association, seeks to find the best balance of the benefits of consumer protection for clients of professional accountants, while actively managing and reporting to Councils on financial services, recognising the improvements made in the financial services laws and regulation at the Commonwealth level. In June 2019, the Councils approved a new scheme proposed by CPA Australia Ltd, which recognised the consumer protection benefits of including all public practice members, and will report to Councils on financial services activities including management of known risks and monitoring emerging risks.

Both accounting bodies are committed to responding to the Councils' imperative to continuously improve their professional standards relating to financial services in response to consumer requirements and the public interest through informed risk management, education, codes of ethics, quality management, and effective management of complaints.

Scheme extensions of expiry date

The Minister responsible for the professional standards legislation in each jurisdiction has the discretion to extend the expiry date of a scheme, once only and for up to 12 months, if an occupational association applies for such an extension. Table 3 shows the schemes that were extended during the year.

Table 3 / Professional standards schemes extended between 1 July 2018 to 30 June 2019

Association	New expiry date
Professional Surveyors Occupational Association On 10 August 2018 the NSW Minister published a notice of extension. The scheme does not operate in South Australia, Western Australia or Tasmania.	10 November 2019
Western Australian Bar Association On 21 December 2018 the WA Attorney-General published a notice of extension. The scheme does not operate in Tasmania.	30 June 2020

An approved scheme cannot commence until it has been published or otherwise notified with ministerial authority.

Scheme amendments

The Councils approved one amendment to a scheme during the reporting period, for the Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd. The amendment was notable in that it demonstrated the association's recognition of a changing risk environment.

Amending a scheme by introducing a new risk-based monetary limit

On 12 April 2019, the Professional Standards Council of New South Wales approved the application by Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd for an amendment to create a new monetary limit based on a type of lower risk work.

The scheme applies to all 4,855 members of the Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd. As it initially operated, there is a range of monetary compensation limits and the relevant monetary limit applicable to a member is determined by the highest valuation performed in the most recent 12-month period, defined as the "Upper End Value". The monetary limits ranged from $1 million to $10 million, according to the Upper End Value.

The scheme provided a discretionary authority for the Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd to approve a higher monetary limit than would otherwise apply to a member, upon application by the member and subject to the consideration by the association, up to a maximum of $20 million.

The nature and significance of the amendment

The amendment introduced a "Low Risk Valuation" monetary limit into the scheme and the Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd's insurance standards. This has an applicable monetary limit of $1 million in respect of each claim arising under this type of work and is exempt from the Upper End Value mechanism. Otherwise, the other monetary limits in the scheme remained unchanged.

The amendment introduced a type of work applying a risk-based methodology to determine the applicable monetary limit for those members who undertake valuations that have a low incidence of claims or have claims of a lower value, measured by reference to the valuation figure.

The amendment encourages members of Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd to consider the risks inherent in their valuation work and use this to inform their professional indemnity insurance requirements.

The association advocated that the new monetary limit in the scheme would foster an increasing culture of risk management and awareness of risks by the members, which represents a significant advancement in the development of occupational standards and consumers' protection.

Recognition of schemes under Commonwealth laws

As part of the national framework of professional standards legislation, the Commonwealth provides members of occupational associations who participate in an approved scheme with capped civil liability in relation to misleading and deceptive conduct under Commonwealth laws to ensure national consistency. The statutes and their relevant sections are:

- › Competition and Consumer Act 2010, section 137(2)
- › Corporations Act 2001, section 144B(2)
- › Australian Securities and Investments Commission Act 2001, section 12GNA(2).

Schemes may be prescribed under regulations for these laws; prescription gives effect, in the Commonwealth legislation, to decisions made by the Councils to approve or amend schemes in their respective jurisdictions. Where an occupational association seeks to have its approved scheme prescribed, the Councils co-operate with the Commonwealth Treasury to facilitate this process.

Expected scheme applications

Based on the expiry dates of schemes currently in force, the Councils anticipate that applications for new schemes may be received from the following occupational associations during the next reporting period:

- › Western Australian Bar Association—current scheme scheduled to expire (after 12-month extension) 30 June 2020
- › Institute of Public Accountants—current scheme scheduled to expire 31 December 2020 (unless extended)
- › RICS Valuers Ltd—current scheme scheduled to expire 31 December 2020 (unless extended).

The Professional Surveyors Occupational Association—whose scheme will expire, after statutory extension, on 10 November 2019—has advised Councils they will not be making an application to re-make their scheme.

Monitoring the compliance of associations, and relevant professional standards

Overview

The key to the successful operation of the professional standards regime is the Councils' ability to supervise the operation of schemes and monitor each association's compliance with professional standards legislation and its commitments to its members and their clients. This supervision is central to protecting consumers of professional services.

The compliance and enforcement powers of Councils are necessary and are part of the supervision framework. However they are not the totality, and in isolation are not sufficient to achieve the objects of the professional standards legislation and Councils' regulatory objectives.

Supervision focuses on the effectiveness of an association's detailed client-focused risk management strategies and the implementation and monitoring of those strategies to achieve improved occupational standards. Supervision goes beyond compliance with legislation and is forward-looking and improvement focussed.

Strategy 2021

Performance Measure

- i. Decreasing seriousness in complaints/claims in the professional standards regime.
  - › Councils are currently developing an operational definition of 'seriousness' and considering data such as:
    - The variability in data currently submitted by associations limits straightforward analysis of 'seriousness'. Not all associations reported the number of notifications and claims, or the size of final payment (an important indicator of seriousness)
    - the average size of claim. Of note, a higher average claim was associated with a greater number of claims
    - the percentage of notifications that proceeded to a finalised (and therefore more serious) claim
    - the percentage of all claims that exceed 50% of the prescribed cap.
  - › The Authority will continue to work with associations to improve the quality of data and refine an operational definition of 'seriousness'.
- ii. Improvement in compliance and risk management of approved schemes.
- iii. Councils are recognised for their occupational risk management knowledge and data.
  - › During 2018–19, Councils were consulted and provided advice on the professional standards implications in a number of areas:
    - Royal Commission into Misconduct in the Banking, Superannuation and Financial Services Industry
    - Building Ministers' Forum
    - Professional Standards Forum on risk management and root cause complaints
    - Engagement with Griffith University on professions
    - Development of a Research Library in conjunction with the University of NSW
    - Engagement with NSW Better Regulation Division on professional indemnity insurance and occupational risk
    - Direct engagements with individual associations.

Supervision of regulated occupational associations is enabled by the objects and functions of the professional standards legislation. Councils' supervision as a meta-regulator will remain proportionate and includes compliance and enforcement activities. This year, a supervision team has been established to enhance Councils' supervision of occupational associations including compliance with professional standards legislation.

A significant part of supervisory work is to actively encourage and assist associations on developing self-regulatory capacity. Engaging with associations to improve occupational standards and consumer protection is a key part of the supervision team's activities.

If an association does not meet its statutory obligations, the Councils may consider initiating one or more of its supervision actions, including: making recommendations for improvement; ordering the review of a professional standards scheme; conducting or compelling an association to undertake a compliance audit; instituting proceedings to prosecute offences under professional standards legislation or regulations; taking injunctive or other relief relating to certain offences; or initiating the amendment or revocation of an association's professional standards scheme.

Professional Standards Improvement Program

Associations that operate a professional standards scheme are required to submit a Professional Standards Improvement Program report annually to the Councils. The report requires the association to specify the actions taken in: scheme administration, scheme compliance, member entry standards and controls, client centered risk management, complaints and discipline outcomes, continuing occupational education, professional indemnity insurance claims data, improved occupational standards, and governance.

In 2018 a change to the data required in relation to claims and notifications was incorporated into the Professional Standards Improvement Program template to include reporting on those claims and notifications that exceeded 50% of the monetary ceilings specified in the association's scheme. This change provides more targeted reporting that will enable the Councils to monitor and analyse the effectiveness of limitation of liability settings across the professional standards regime. The Councils will examine the new data set over the next reporting period and consider any regulatory responses that may be indicated.

The associations' annual Professional Standards Improvement Program reporting to Councils is a vital element of effective self-regulatory practice, driven by commitments made by each association to improve professional standards in its community. Each association's Professional Standards Improvement Program report is analysed to identify areas for improvement, and the association is provided with feedback. Information and data reported in the Professional Standards Improvement Program report can also be compared by Councils over time and across associations. This provides Councils with rich insights into the operation of professional standards schemes and their efficacy and forms an evolving part of the Councils' supervision function.

Root cause analysis

In 2018 the Professional Standards Improvement Program requirements were revised to include analysis of root causes for professional indemnity insurance claims and complaints. Associations have responded positively and provided additional information that will assist with identifying underlying causes of consumer claims.

Figure 3 presents a summary analysis of root causes resulting in claims and complaints. Councils will continue to engage with associations to understand root causes of consumer risks.

Common areas for improvement

Councils have identified five common areas of improvement from the regulated occupational association Professional Standards Improvement Program reports.

Complaints and discipline systems

Many associations can improve the efficacy of their consumer complaints and discipline systems. To increase standards in this area, Councils aim to provide advice to associations about the central importance of an effective complaints and discipline system guided by AS/NZS 10002:2014 Complaint Management in Organisations. An effective complaints and discipline system captures data which then informs the association's risk analysis, risk management mitigation strategies, and occupational standards. Councils conducted a Professional Standards Forum program in April 2019, starting with analysing root causes to inform risk management and improved occupational standards.

Sources of data to inform improved occupational standards

Associations often use data from a single source rather than building a complete picture by using multiple sources of data. Using a single source of data may lead to limited consideration of risks and strategies to improve occupational standards. Data collected by associations, through complaints received and proactive collation of notifications and claims data, assists identifying trends and drawing conclusions from an occupational risk management perspective.

Councils' guidance has informed associations of the wider range of data available from diverse sources, and there is still room for improvement, because no source of data is perfect or unbiased. This guidance will be published and promoted in the next reporting period. Multi-source data assists associations to identify trends as they are in a unique position to collect, analyse and synthesise the data on behalf of the occupation and their members. Similarly, coherent professional indemnity insurance data may assist an association to provide group insurance to its members or to construct a mutual.

Councils will continue to explore new data sharing opportunities with associations to increase the amount of information available to associations. In turn, it is anticipated that associations will continue to improve with the insights available from shared data.

Detailed risk management strategies

While associations have a focus on enterprise risks, they must also bring a particular focus to occupational risks between their members and the consumer. Councils will continue to guide associations on their statutory obligation to improve occupational standards to protect consumers, including the analysis of consumer risks in the context of professional standards schemes and legislation.

The required focus on occupational risks and putting the consumer at the centre of risk management continues to be a developing opportunity, particularly for associations with a strong commercial, or industry body orientation. As a result, associations can often identify their professional integrity systems data, but then neglect to integrate the data, information and trends into their risk management framework.

Scheme compliance

Many associations need to improve in this area. Compliance management, as a subset of detailed risk management strategies, enables associations to reliably achieve the scheme's objectives with the principled approach of commitment, implementation, scheme monitoring, measuring, and continual improvement.

While associations are generally aware of their regulatory obligations, there is a need to improve the articulation of professional standards legislation related obligations and the relevant controls to promote efficient scheme monitoring.

Scheme administration

Several associations have limited resources to dedicate to the operation of the professional standards scheme. Associations should be able to respond to an enquiry made by a consumer as to whether a member, at a point in time, is either a scheme participant, an excluded or exempted member, or has a higher threshold level of liability than would otherwise apply.

Associations need to ensure their members are educated about their scheme and the obligations associated with it, so their members can explain the scheme, limitation of liability and, on request, provide the scheme instrument to a consumer.

Compliance with annual membership reporting requirements

In many instances, associations failed to provide reconcilable or consistent member numbers—which is a material consumer protection concern of Councils.

To resolve this issue, Councils will update their guidance notes on the requirement to keep an effective and accurate (at all times) member register. In addition, the Councils will be undertaking supervision activities where an association cannot demonstrate consistent compliant member registration records.

Professional Standards Improvement Program findings by sector

Accountants

Noticeable improvements were observed across the accounting profession. These improvements reflected actions taken by associations in a number of areas, including:

- › reformed strategic and business plans, organisational structure and compliance plans recognising ISO 19600:2014 Compliance Management Systems
- › review and implementation of risk management strategies
- › gap analysis to improve risk management and consistency with ISO 21000:2018 Educational Organisations—Management Systems
- › enhanced reporting on professional standards scheme risk management, as well as organisation-wide risk management to audit and risk committees

Solicitors

There were improvements in a number of areas by solicitors including:

- › scheme monitoring reviews and increased audit of disclosure statements
- › a comprehensive risk management review by one association which led to the implementation of a new risk management system. The new system addresses key areas, including practice management, service delivery and communication, vulnerable clients, well-being, doctrinal law, changing landscapes and accelerants of risk.

Barristers

Improved risk management arrangements were also observed by some bar associations during the year. One association undertook an extensive review of its risk management plan, which is now consistent with ISO 31000:2018 Risk Management. Internal and external data, and a full assessment of current risk mitigation strategies, were considered, with new strategies in continuing professional development, support services, and resourcing implemented in 2018.

Similarly, another association established a working group to review risk management processes which has led to new risk mitigation strategies and controls either proposed or implemented in 2018.

Assisting with improving occupational standards of occupational associations

Stakeholder engagement

Engaging with stakeholders is a key enabler to achieving the Councils' goals in Strategy 2021.

Actions during the year have focused on engaging with regulated occupational associations, prospective occupational associations, consumer affairs officials, Ministers, and Departments in each of the eight jurisdictions.

Councils have ongoing engagement with the 17 regulated occupational associations. This includes engagement from the scheme and supervision teams at the Authority on matters such as improving professional standards and meeting legislative requirements.

The Councils empower the Chief Executive Officer to meet and liaise with prospective occupational associations in both a proactive and reactive manner. During the year, proactive activities have occurred with key occupational groups as part of Strategy 2021. Engagements were conducted in the built environment sector, following the publication of the report written by Peter Shergold and Bronwyn Weir, Building Confidence—Improving the effectiveness of compliance and enforcement systems for the building and construction industry across Australia commissioned by the Building Ministers' Forum, and in the financial services sector following the Royal Commission into Misconduct in the Banking, Superannuation and Financial Services Industry.

During the year, Councils' members and the Chief Executive Officer have briefed the responsible Minister and consumer affairs official in each jurisdiction. Meetings with Western Australia, the Commonwealth, Victoria and the Northern Territory are planned to occur in the second half of 2019. These meetings have concentrated on Councils' Strategy 2021 and ensuring its alignment with each jurisdiction's policies and consumer protection priorities.

Performance Measure

Attendees at the Councils April 2019 Forum on Complaints as a Risk Management Tool were emailed a 'survey monkey' questionnaire after the event. This asked six specific questions about the registration process, the resources available, the assistance provided by Authority staff, the speakers and the presentations, followed by four 'open' questions relating to key messages, next steps and future topics.

All respondents gave positive responses to the survey; for example, there was a 96% approval rating that the speakers were knowledgeable and engaging.

Attendees were pleased with the event and its focus. For example, one respondent said the forum was "a very positive step, a great forum, very informative and beneficial, hope to see... similar forums in the future."

Topics suggested for future forums included: 'conflicts of interest'; 'professional ethics'; 'ways to change member behaviour'; 'should community demands for retributive justice be incorporated into professional disciplinary systems? What are the alternatives?'; and 'feedback from the Councils on the information gained from PSIP Annual Reports in order to assist associations improve in areas that show weakness'.

The April 2019 Forum achieved its objectives and met a need with key stakeholder groups. Associations reported that they will take steps to apply root cause analysis to their complaints processes and use the information in a more constructive way to find solutions to the causes of complaints.

Professional Standards Forum

During the year, Councils initiated a new twice-yearly Professional Standards Forum which will focus on occupational standards improvement.

The first Forum was held in Sydney in April 2019 on complaints as a risk management tool. This brought together over 50 delegates from regulated occupational associations, prospective occupational groupings, and sector leaders to improve professional standards and consumer experiences.

The Forum included both panel and workshop sessions, and featured presentations by leading experts in professional standards including:

- › Fiona McLeay, Victorian Legal Service Board CEO and Commissioner Victorian Legal Services Commissioner
- › Fiona Brown, Chief Executive SOCAP Australia
- › Nicole Cullen, Director Cullaborate
- › Andrew Lumsden, Deputy Chair Professional Standards Councils

Attendees were presented with insights on the strategic use of complaints data to understand consumer experiences and to drive improvements in the delivery of services. Delegates participated in a workshop on identifying the root cause of complaints and discussed how strengthening the competence and conduct of association members can directly improve customer satisfaction. The prevention of systemic and recurring issues and complaints enables associations to deliver improved outcomes for consumers.

The Forum provided an opportunity for cross-professional conversations and feedback. It reinforced the importance of working together for better complaints management.

Attendee feedback for the Forum was positive with respondents appreciating the information provided and keen to have similar forums in future.

Further forums are planned during the next 12 months on relevant topics across Australia.

Comments from delegates included: “complaints data is valuable intelligence in every business. Root Cause Analysis is a process that can be engaging and helpful”. “A great forum—informative and beneficial”.

Regulatory assurance action

Councils exercise their powers in the public interest and take measured regulatory assurance actions when associations are non-compliant with professional standards legislation.

During the year, Councils took regulatory assurance action with a number of associations. This typically took the form of:

- › More frequent (six-monthly) reporting requirements in areas of emerging risk or concern
- › Targeted engagements and meetings to discuss progress on identified issues of concern and corrective action occurring
- › Provision of feedback letters to associations on their Professional Standards Improvement Program results, identifying areas for improvement.

Providing assistance and advice to associations

As a regulator, the Councils have unique statutory powers to assist, advise and encourage occupational associations to improve their occupational standards.

Risk workshops

On behalf of and as directed by the Councils, the Authority conducted a number of targeted risk workshops with associations during the year.

Workshops were conducted for the Australian Computer Society, the Victorian Bar Association and CPA Australia. The workshops were attended by, and focused towards leaders and policy makers, being senior managers and directors.

These workshops are tailored to meet the needs of each association and run for between a half-day to two days. The workshops aimed to identify and document the risks that exist between the occupational association member and their client, drawing on the evidence across a wide range of occupations as well as the data collected by the association specific to their members.

The workshops focus on identifying the underlying causes of failures in professional standards to enable the association to develop strategies that effectively target and treat the risks. The association is then positioned to deliver better consumer protection through the continuous improvement of their professional standards system.

Publishing advice and information

Australian Research Council Linkage Research Project

This collaborative project seeks to provide professionals and the general public with an online platform of evidence-based resources and knowledge on modern professionalism.

Led by Professor Dimity Kingsford Smith, Director of the Centre for Law, Markets and Regulation at the University of New South Wales, Professions in the 21st Century: Regulatory Engagement, Design and Strategy has been successfully implemented during the year.

The Councils' Research Library on Modern Professionalism was launched in December 2018 providing over 40 articles on modern professionalism.

Materials are located on both the Councils' and the University's websites, as well as in a range of academic and professional journals. The Library will assist emerging professions and occupations to engage with professionalism and the development of self-regulatory capacity.

A related highlight during the year was a presentation to the Professional Futures Conference: Challenges and opportunities for 21st Century professions, convened by Professor Charles Sampford, Foundation Dean of Law and Director of the Institute for Ethics, Governance and Law at Griffith University, Queensland. The conference brought together practitioners, academics and regulators from 15 professions to explore the challenges and opportunities for professions. The Chief Executive Officer presented on the "Regulation of the Professions".

Together, Councils and Professor Sampford have identified potential areas of interest in research and collaboration which will be developed in the next reporting period.

Advising Ministers regarding the operation of the professional standards legislation

Briefings on the national professional standards regulatory system and Councils' Strategy 2021 were offered to all responsible Ministers, and delivered by Councils' members and the Chief Executive Officer during the reporting period.

A particular focus during the year was the emerging challenges to the accessibility and affordability of professional indemnity insurance for occupations in the built environment.

During 2018–19, Councils monitored these trends and engaged with relevant Ministers, particularly through the Building Ministers' Forum. To assist consideration of the issues, a background paper was prepared on the contribution of professional standards schemes in improving regulatory effectiveness.

It is anticipated that engagement with the Building Ministers' Forum on these current issues will continue into 2019–20.

Regulatory fees

Associations are required to pay an annual fee calculated by reference to the number of members to whom the scheme applies who is a member of the association at any time during the relevant annual fee period. The due date for payment of annual fees is specified by the Professional Standards Regulations. In accordance with the Regulations, interest is payable when the payment is received on or after 31 days past the due date.

In the financial year 2018–19, associations paid their fees on time except three associations who paid their annual fees late, namely:

- › Australian Computer Society
- › Law Institute of Victoria
- › Bar Association of Queensland.

Table 4 identifies the associations where interest was levied on an overdue annual fee payment, the interest charged, and the days in arrears.

Table 4 / Late payment of annual fees

Three fee waiver applications

- › Australian Property Institute Valuers Ltd:
  - waiver of amendment application fees—Councils determined there were no special reasons to waive the fee payable under the Regulations in this case.
- › CPA Australia:
  - partial waiver of amendment application fees—Councils determined that there were special circumstances arising from the unintended consequences of the association’s current scheme fee and reduced it from $40,000 to $10,000.
- › Law Society of NSW:
  - waiver of member fees—Councils determined there were no special reasons to waive the fee payable under the Regulations in this case.

Legislative changes

There were two legislative changes during the year:

- › New South Wales—Administrative Arrangements (Administration of Acts—General) Order (No 2) 2019 of 1 May 2019 allocates the administration of the Professional Standards Act 1994 (NSW) to the Minister for Better Regulation and Innovation (previously the Minister for Innovation and Better Regulation).
- › Tasmania—Administrative Arrangements Order 2019—Statutory Rules 2019 No. 2 of 26 February 2019 allocates the administration of the Professional Standards Act 2005 (Tas) to the Minister for Building and Construction (previously the Attorney-General).

Section 3 Structure and governance

Structure and governance

Structure of the Professional Standards Councils

There are eight Professional Standards Councils. There is a Council for each state and territory. They operate together as “Councils” under the Professional Standards Agreement 2011.

This Agreement, sometimes referred to as the Ministerial Agreement, is between Ministers in each state and territory of Australia. The agreement provides for a national system of professional standards regulation, including national co-operation in the administrative support of Councils.

Each state and territory appoints the same 11 members to each Council. The 11 members of the Councils are comprised of two members each from New South Wales and Victoria, with every other state and territory, together with the Commonwealth, nominating one member.

Members of Councils are appointed by the relevant Minister in each state or territory.

Councils’ members are appointed for a term not exceeding three years, and are eligible to be reappointed when their term expires. To ensure transparency and probity in relation to the Councils’ decisions, Councils’ members must declare any conflicts of interest on their appointment and at the start of each meeting.

The Councils’ role is to:

- › approve professional standards schemes
- › encourage and assist self-regulation by associations of members through schemes
- › encourage and assist the improvement of occupational and professional standards
- › monitor standards of professionals and compliance by associations.

Each Council comprises a Chair, Deputy Chair and members.

Table 5 shows total remuneration for each member for 2018–19.

In accordance with the Ministerial Agreement, NSW sets the rates of remuneration payable to the members of the Councils, in accordance with the appropriate guidelines for the remuneration of government boards.

In 2018–19, and following consultation with all jurisdictions, NSW reviewed remuneration rates for Councils’ members and the role of Chair.

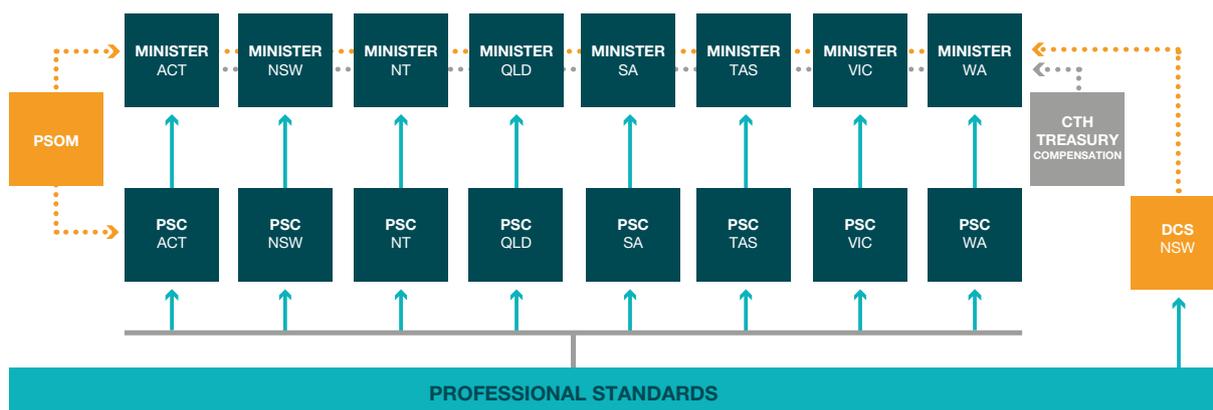

Councils were classified as an E4-iii entity under the Classification and Remuneration Framework for NSW Government Boards and Committees.

The new per annum rates of remuneration were effective from 1 July 2018.

National system

The success of Australia’s national system of professional standards regulation relies on the co-operation and partnership of relevant Ministers and their respective Departments. Figure 4 below provides a diagram of the national system structure.

Intergovernmental agreements

Three agreements work together to provide the national system of professional standards regulation. Ministers in all states and territories entered into the Professional Standards Agreement 2011.

Working in tandem with the Professional Standards Agreement are two other agreements:

- › The Professional Standards Inter-Departmental Service Agreement 2016, an agreement between state and territory departments that holds that services to the Councils will be provided by the NSW Department of Customer Service; and

- › The Professional Standards Councils and the Departmental Procurement of Services Agreement 2016, an agreement between state and territory departments and Councils to ensure that Councils have the services they require to carry out their functions.

Departmental arrangements

The intergovernmental agreements are administered by professional standards officers in the relevant Department for each jurisdiction.

To assist this role, there is a quarterly Professional Standards Officers Meeting which provides a forum for liaison and co-operation between the Authority and professional standards officers.

The professional standards officers discuss issues that require consideration at a national level, including operation of the Inter-Departmental Service Agreement 2016, and the Ministerial Professional Standards Agreement 2011.

- › Endorsed the jurisdictional FY2017–18 audit reports received
- › Reviewed and advised Councils on associations' professional standards improvement reporting and performance
- › Endorsed the 2018 Annual Professional Standards Improvement Program (PSIP) Report guideline and template
- › Advised Councils on FY2019–20 budget
- › Advised Councils on a range of regulated fee and reporting matters
- › Reviewed and advised Councils on management of risk and setting a risk appetite statement
- › Instituted a new compliance calendar to monitor statutory obligations.

Councils' committees

The Councils can delegate work to a committee, or an advisory group, including:

- › Finance, Audit and Risk Management Committees
- › Governance and Policy Advisory Group.

Finance, Audit and Risk Management Committees

The Committees oversee financial management, risk management, budget management, the annual reporting process and content, and associations' risk management and compliance reporting.

There were four scheduled meetings and five out-of-session meetings held during the 2018–19 reporting year.

Achievements

- › Reviewed and endorsed the content for the Councils' 2017–18 Annual Report
- › Endorsed the Financial Statements for the year ending 30 June 2018

Governance and Policy Advisory Group

The group assists and advises Councils on:

- › advancing the strategic goals and initiatives of Councils, as defined in Strategy 2021
- › governance arrangements of the Councils to support statutory decision-making
- › Councils' regulatory policies and processes.

The group was reinstated at the January 2019 Councils' meeting but had not met as at 30 June 2019.

Meetings are held a minimum of twice yearly.

NSW DCS provided financial reporting services to the Councils. All revenue and expenditure figures are prepared based on an accruals basis of accounting and are exclusive of Goods and Services Tax. The annual financial statements for South Australia, Queensland, Western Australia and Victoria are required under their respective legislation and audited financial statements are provided separately to the relevant jurisdictional departments, for tabling in their respective parliaments.

Note 2: Scheme annual fee revenue is recognised over the scheme year; some scheme annual periods are not aligned to a fiscal year resulting in a deferred revenue component. This deferred component is recognised during the subsequent fiscal year.

The Acting CEO had an annual remuneration package (including superannuation guarantee) of $259,654. One Senior Executive Band 1 (male) employee had an annual remuneration package (including superannuation guarantee)
