2 Role of the NSW Registry of Births Deaths & Marriages

The Registry is responsible for the administration of the Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Act 1995 (the Act).

The role of the Registry is to register NSW life events accurately and securely for all time, ensuring their integrity and confidentiality. Information is collected under the provision of the Act. This information forms the basis to register births, deaths, marriages, adoptions, surrogacy, relationships and official changes of name and sex.

The Registry provides a range of certificates, products and information services to assist customers establish a range of legal entitlements.

3 What is Privacy?

Privacy is the right to exercise control over your personal information.

Information privacy is the way in which governments or organisations handle our personal information such as our age, address, sexual preference and so on.

Personal information is any information or opinion about an identifiable person. This includes records containing your name, address, sex, etc.

4 Protecting your Privacy

The PPIP Act outlines a set of privacy standards that regulate the way NSW public sector agencies deal with personal information.

The PPIP Act also sets out legal obligations that describe what a NSW government agency must do when it collects, stores, uses, and discloses your personal information.

The Registry adheres to the PPIP Act when registering NSW life events. Your information is collected and stored securely for all time.

5 Your right to Privacy

Under the PPIP Act you have a number of rights, including the following:

- You must be told why your personal information is being collected and whether it can be given to anyone else;
- You must be told if the supply of information is required by law or is voluntary;
- You must be told of any right of access to your personal information and how to have it corrected; and
- Your personal information must be stored securely and protected from unauthorised access or misuse.

6 Disclosure of information

Information from the Register may be disclosed to external agencies for the purposes of statistical, medical research, community planning purposes and other uses provided for by law. These include, but are not limited to:

- Australian Bureau of Statistics
