

The Meadowbank Education and Employment Precinct (the Precinct) is reimagining the way we learn and connect.

The Precinct will have education at its heart, while connecting students to training and employment opportunities with local industry and surrounding communities. It will be an open and safe place where locals can access shared facilities.

A bold new Place Vision

The NSW Government's Place Vision for the Precinct sets out a road map for its delivery. It strives to deliver better learning opportunities, new jobs, improved connectivity, and greener streets and community spaces.

What the Precinct will deliver for Meadowbank

New opportunities for employment and business to come together in the Precinct

The ability to pilot a new model of cooperation between education institutions and business, to smooth student transitions from different levels of education to the workplace

An accessible and attractive precinct that integrates with its surrounds and creates opportunities to share knowledge, services and infrastructure

Community benefits

Meadowbank Public School and Marsden High School will be co-located with the new TAFE NSW Meadowbank, creating opportunities for shared learning and innovative education pathways

TAFE NSW and industry partners will work together to create improved pathways to employment

There will be new TAFE NSW facilities including a purpose-built Multi-Trades and Digital Technology Hub

The Precinct will create opportunities for the revitalisation of existing commercial areas, including the Sydney Water site and employment lands

The Precinct will create opportunities for better walking and cycling connectivity as well as improved access to public transport

The Precinct will create opportunities for more vibrant community spaces
